CART GIRL OF THE MONTH

Talk about inspiration to not shank it off the tee. Twenty-one-year-old Raquel Leyva is a member of Pin-Up Golf Girls (www.pinupgolf.com), a California company of sexy cart girls who travel to tournaments nationwide and entertain players with refreshments, raffles, and their adoration. (Their motto: "Have kilt, will travel.") Leyva, a native of Orange County, California, and a junior theater major at Riverside Community College, admits her golf game needs work. But with regular tourneys, part-time jobs at Victoria's Secret and Crunch gym, and her dream of working on a Hollywood set, when will she find time?

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE "I recently stage-managed our school production of The Crucible. I made sure everything was under control—getting the props and costumes together. Eventually, I want to move to L.A. and work behind the scenes of movies."

GREENS FEES "Most guys will buy raffle tickets just to strike up conversation. I've had people follow me all day.

I think it's kind of cute, especially 'cause the money goes to charity."

AND THE WINNER IS... Sergio Garcia. "I've met Darius Rucker of Hootie & the Blowfish and Charles Barkley at the Sean Salisbury Celebrity Golf Tournament, but I'm still waiting to meet Sergio—he's definitely a hottie."

FAMOUS LAST WORDS "Guys are always telling me I look like Britney Spears. But the worst pickup line is 'Hey, baby, what's under that kilt of yours?'" —Wendy Straker
